President's Notes

Well, friends, we all survived Log Cabin Days 2014! Despite some rain on Sunday, we still had a successful event. My heartfelt thanks to each and every one of you for anything and every little thing you did. None of us can do any of this alone and Log Cabin Days sure proves it. We are good together! I saw many new young families visiting and this is what it is all about. These visitors are our future.

We are lucky to have great sponsors who allow us to continue to offer Log Cabin Days FREE to all. Smith's Disposal, our Township Treasurer, Margaret Birch, and Waterford Coney Island were full sponsors this year. Please tell them how much their donation means to us.

Rest up because next up is Christmas in October on October 17 & 18. We need you to bake cookies and get your shopping list ready for action. We have a wonderful selection of Made in Michigan items in our Log Cabin Store. All of our craft items in Jacober's Store are quality and you will certainly find something for everyone. The best part is you will be donating to the future of our Village.

Speaking of the future, be sure to drive in and see the new paint job on Jacober's Store. We don't just build, we have to maintain. Thankfully, because of you, we can keep moving forward.

Here's to another great summer!

It only took 40 years, but the Hatchery Houses' kitchen cabinets have finally been restored to their 1920s appearance complete with the fabled fish.

LOOKING BACK at the Fish in the Kitchen

By Rich Welsh

Back in the 1970s we asked former Hatchery House resident and Waterford School teacher Velma Hughes to give us a tour of the house as she remembered it. As it turned out the kitchen was one of the most interesting rooms in the house. She pointed out that the floor plan had been changed with the removal of a pantry which had been located where the stove is today. In her day a coal cook stove was located next to the chimney where the refrigerator is currently located. Since there was an ice house on the property ice was free, so they had an ice box years after most people had electric refrigerators. She also explained that they had a free-standing cast iron sink under the double windows, the cabinet & sink found there today are a later addition. The tall built-in cabinets on the kitchen's east wall, which mirror the built-in cabinets in the dining room, are original to the house. Unlike their oak counterparts the kitchen cabinets are made of pine and were intended to be painted. The two sets of built-in cabinets are tied together by a pass through window which we agreed was a very unique detail.

Then she told us something amusing. Being artistic and in keeping with the fish hatchery theme, she said she had traced the outlines of live fish (raised in the hatchery's ponds) on the recessed panels of the cabinet doors and had painted their silhouettes for decoration. What could be more appropriate? The Hatchery House was after all a state owned building built to serve the Drayton Plains Fish Hatchery, its only reason for existing was the fish. And, seeing that the Hughes' got all the fish they wanted, absolutely free, and as fresh as fresh fish could possibly be, it is safe to conclude that, through the years, more fish have been cooked in that kitchen than in most restaurants.

Myself, having been in the Waterford Schools building trades class that painted the Hatchery House in the 1970s, had seen those very fish while scraping the cabinets prepping them for the blue coat of paint of our era. After Mrs. Hughes left I said to my mother "I know exactly what the fish look like, I saw them, let's put them back on like it was in the 1920s." Her reply was, "I don't want fish in my kitchen." I'm sure we can all relate with the child / parent dynamic where you get shut down no matter how good your idea. So I had to wait 40 years to finally do it right.

The first step was to find out the built-in cabinets' original colors. Paint stripping a cabinet door down to the first layer of paint revealed they were originally a very cheerful springtime green with cream panels and dark green fish. The paint was matched, mixed, and the restoration began. It seemed best to paint the built-in cabinets green and cream while painting the cabinets that were added later cream and green. This way the two different generations of cabinets look good together while still establishing a time difference between them. Following Mrs. Hughes' model only the silhouettes of fish raised in the hatchery were used – bass, bluegill, perch, walleye, and a gar pike for the longer panels. The end result is quite dramatic, perhaps a wee bit kooky, and finally at long last historically accurate. Restoring the cabinets to their former glory turned out to be more labor intensive than anyone had anticipated, and yet if anyone deserves credit it is Mrs. Hughes, after all it was her idea.

Together We Can Build a Schoolhouse

The Dream The Vision The Village

“Build it and they will come” seems to say it all. The Waterford Historical Society’s labor of love is coming to life. The community’s support and appreciation of what has been done so far has been very uplifting.

We hope to continue our vision by adding a turn of the century one room schoolhouse to the Waterford Historic Village located in Fish Hatchery Park. With help from generous supporters we can realize this dream.

Anyone wishing to help fund the schoolhouse may send a check in the amount of their choice to: Waterford Historical Society, PO Box 300491, Waterford MI 48330-0491. Write ‘Schoolhouse’ on the memo line.

Donation forms can also be found in this newsletter. One of them is the special ‘Sponsor a Plaque’ program. For $200.00 supporters may recognize a teacher or other educator by buying a plaque to be displayed in the schoolhouse in their honor.

Together we can do great things!

How Were Lakes Named?

Have you ever wondered how some of our lakes got their names? Then you will enjoy these descriptions found in History of Oakland County Michigan 1877.

This township (Waterford), is among the oldest settled divisions of Oakland County. It has great diversity of surface,— lake, stream, hill and valley, marsh and swamp, and beautiful plain.

The principal stream is the Clinton river, which in its windings very nearly divides the township in halves, and receives the surplus waters of many of the lakes found within its borders.

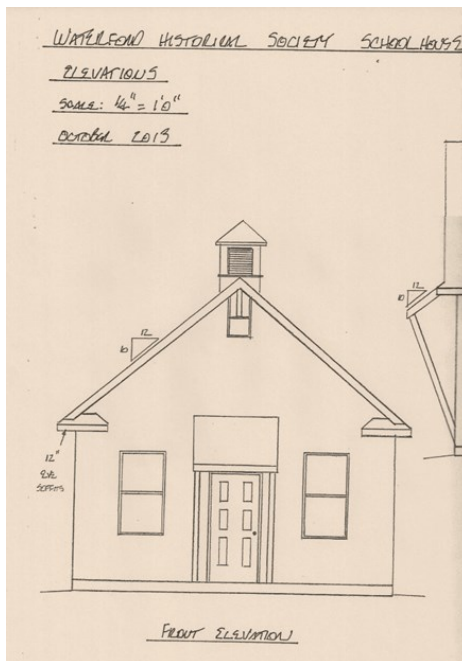

Of these lakes, numbering altogether thirty or more, the largest is Elizabeth lake, a sheet of water some four hundred acres in extent. Its shores are bold and clean, and partly covered by timber. Cosy villas are numerous in its vicinity, and the beauty of the lake and its surroundings can scarcely be surpassed. The name, “Elizabeth lake,” was given to it in honor of the wife of General Lewis Cass, the second Territorial governor of Michigan. “Cass lake,” a portion of which lies in Waterford, was named for the governor himself.

Among the lakes of the township the finest are Williams, Watkins, Silver, and Scott’s. Besides these there are Loon, Three-Mile, Pond, Woodhull, Mace Day, Pleasant, Otter, Timber, and part of Pickerel, with numerous other smaller sheets not distinguished by name.

“Mace Day lake” has a curious origin for its name. A man named Mason Day,— called “Mace” for short,— who at an earlier period kept a livery stable in Pontiac, was a great hunter and fisherman, and was also fond of his rations of the extract of rye. Whenever he felt a spree beginning to enfold him in its meshes, or was caught with a desire to go on a hunting or fishing excursion, he almost invariably went to the shore of the lake which bears his name to engage in his favorite pastimes. On these occasions he provided himself with provisions, etc., and camped on the lake-shore, generally staying several months.

“Williams lake” takes its name from Ferdinand Williams, who settled on its shore in 1829. It is a beautiful sheet, having timbered shores more than half the distance around it, and possessing a clean sandy beach. Watkins lake is named after a man named Watkins, who settled early on its south shore.

Waterford township derived its name from the circumstance of its containing so large an area of water surface. The name was proposed by Shubael Atherton, who settled in Waterford in about 1825. The entire area covered by water in the township approximates 2600 acres.
